James Platt White Society

Founders' Circle

The founders of the University at Buffalo, primarily physicians and attorneys, envisioned a school to train students for service to the community. The James Platt White Society's Founders help to actualize that vision by providing a generous base of support for programs and activities that enrich the academic environment and enhance medical training. Donors who have cumulative contributions of $50,000 or more, or who have established a deferred gift for $100,000 or more, are considered Founding members of the James Platt White Society.

Founded in 1846, the University at Buffalo School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences has a proud history. James Platt White, MD (1811–1881), one of the nation's first practicing obstetricians and gynecologists, was one of the founders of the school. Later, he became a professor and served as dean of the school until he died in 1881.

James Platt White contributed significantly to society and to the university through his clinical and academic leadership. It is fitting that we associate his name with the distinguished donors who make leadership gifts to the School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences through the James Platt White Society.

Members of the James Platt White Society give gifts of $1,000 or more annually to the School of Medicine and Biomedical Sciences. This special group of donors may choose to support a variety of options: student scholarships; seed funding for ground-breaking scientific and clinical research; the Dean's Excellence Fund, which provides the dean flexibility to take advantage of unanticipated opportunities that arise mid-year; or established school funds that have special meaning for donors, such as memorial funds.

Donors who choose to become a James Platt White Society member honor the fine history of their alma mater and the tradition of leadership set by physicians and medical researchers. They themselves become leaders through their giving and their stalwart support of the generations of Buffalo-educated physicians who will follow them. We are pleased and proud to recognize this very special group of donors.
