“I represent a rare breed of an anesthesiologist in small private practice. Several years ago I left a busy hospital group practice to start my own office based anesthesia practice. Today my company, Northeast Ambulatory Anesthesia, PLLC provides office based anesthesia services in medical and dental practices throughout Western New York including plastic surgery, urology, radiation oncology and psychiatry. In addition, I am a faculty member in the department of anesthesiology at SUNY Buffalo and a program director for the annual Comprehensive Workshop on Regional Anesthesia and Pain Management, conducted at the University at Buffalo Jacobs School of Medicine, www.buffaloregional.com”

Dr. Berkun is passionate about the practice of medicine and is deeply involved in several medical societies, including New York State Society of Anesthesiologists, American Society of Anesthesiologists, Medical Society of the State of New York and American Medical Association. She holds many titles in each, chairs several committees and is presently a President Elect for the New York State Society of Anesthesiologists, assuming presidency in December 2016.

“My career goal was to achieve a balance between work and family. Being in private practice and running my own business allowed me to enjoy full time anesthesia practice as well as exciting home life with a busy attorney and three active boys.”
